Nobody came to help.

Nobody ever did.

I haven't needed help ever since. Not in a long time.

Get out of my way.

This feared Pokémon has long, slender legs and a cruel heart. It shows no mercy as it stomps on its opponents. A kick from the hardened tips of this Pokémon's legs leaves a wound in the opponent's body and soul that will never heal.

“Empty Space”

When under attack, it secretes a sweet and delicious sweat. The scent only calls more enemies to it. It tries to resist being swallowed by a bird Pokémon by spinning the sepals on its head. It's usually a fruitless attempt.

Nobody is coming to help.

Nobody ever does.

Why would a cute little thing like you need help?

Run along now, sweetie.

“Loss of Me”

Maractus keeps dancing day and night. Maractus keeps dancing
through the pain.
Keep on dancing
with these leaks.
Dancing until it reaches its peak.

Alright, got everything we need, and how.
Let's start production.

Finally, some much needed stress relief after that previous failure. After that last mishap, my confidence was shaken a bit. I got pretty upset. It's good to know there are always smaller victories to fall back on.

The winds begin to cool, summer breezes becoming but a memory. The sun falls from the sky sooner every day.

Even while present, its rays no longer bestow the warmth so cherished. Ever so slowly, the shadow of night becomes more dominant.

All are signs of the changing season.

No sign is clearer, than the flutters of warm color that wave across the cold air.

Green fades from the trees, as it does for the creatures who surround them.

They shed these fragile organs, too draining to maintain in the coming months.

A dreary necessity for darkness yet to come.
